

IS BAR AN AD TO ATHLETICS?

County Seeks to Have Cactus Club Buffet Closed—13 Witnesses Testify.

Thirteen witnesses were examined in the trial of the injunction case against the Cactus club of El Paso in the 24th district court Friday morning, most of them being members prominent in bowling and other athletic sports carried on in the clubrooms on South El Paso street.

The prosecution is seeking to have the buffet in the club closed on the ground that it is not advantageous to the membership and is like those of other social clubs, conducted in violation of law, while the defense seeks to show that the continuance of the bar is incidental to the pleasure and comfort of members.

The following are the witnesses who testified Friday morning: E. J. Redding, Fred Harding, Scott C. White, F. L. Gilmore, T. N. Tyne, J. M. Spahn, Preston Robertson, J. E. Benton, G. C. Moore, F. E. Beecher, George G. Neville, W. D. Stratton, Raymond Bell and Louis Rutherford.

$2500 in House Sold in Year.
The testimony of A. H. Woods, manager of the Rose Hotel, assistant bartender at the Cactus club, in the trial of the injunction suit Thursday brought out statements that the club has a membership of 1000 and that in the several years the club has been open the police had not been called. He said that in his effort to prevent undesirable persons from becoming members, the dues of the club had been raised to $5 yearly.

Woods testified that in 1912 he sold the original Cactus bowling club to the present corporation, in order that every member should have an interest in the larger organization. The sale price was about $2500. He said that since February 1914, approximately 2500 visitors had been allowed the courtesy of the club, but that no visitors were permitted to buy drinks. He asserted that the object of the club is the recreation and pleasure of its members. In reply to the question of county attorney Croom as to whether the sale of drinks is appropriate to bowling, basketball, football, pool and other games allied with the club's membership, Woods said the latter had added to the pleasure, comfort and recreation of members.

Bank President.
It is reported that the president of the City National bank, testified that he was a member of the Cactus club and had joined it for the purpose of having a place where he could go to get a drink. He said that he was a member of the Cactus club and had joined it for the purpose of having a place where he could go to get a drink.

J. D. Fowler, a customs inspector, who was a witness in the trial, testified that he was a member of the Cactus club and had joined it for the purpose of having a place where he could go to get a drink.

ARGUES AGAINST DIVIDING RAIL AND WATER LINES

Washington, D. C., June 1.—A divorce of the Southern Pacific company's rail and water lines, under the Panama Canal act, probably would mean the end of low through rates from coast to coast on low grade freight, Fred H. Wood, counsel for the company, argued today before the Interstate commerce commission.

Prevailing low rates, Mr. Wood said, make rail and water coast to coast business attractive to a single company, but do not afford profit enough for division between two separate companies to make it attractive to either.

The Interstate commerce commission from California to Galveston is profiting through the joint ownership of the rail and water lines, he said, a situation that would not continue if the lines were separated.
